Jim and Bob: A conversation of an Atheist and an Agnostic.

JIM

God damnit, I hate those mother
fucking Jesus Freaks.

BOB

Why do you hate Christians so much?

JIM

It's not that I hate them, I just hate being confronted by all those fucking people who think it's their duty to preach to me.

BOB

They're just spreading the word of their faith

JIM

More like blind faith. I don't give a shit what people believe.
Believe in whatever the fuck you want to believe. Just don't shove that shit down my throat. Coz I'm gonna puke it back at them.

BOB

I know, I know, but you have to understand that these people want to share god with the world.

JIM

Yeah... God... "The perversion of mankind"

BOB

What?

JIM

C'mon, you still believe in a God?

BOB

I don't believe in organized religion, but I do believe in a higher being. I mean we had to be created from something.

JIM

So you're pretty much an agnostic.

BOB

Pretty much... and you're an atheist...

JIM

Of course. I went to fucking Catholic school, and what I learned is that God is just a paternal figure and ask to suffice their selfish greed. All the prayers are to beg for mercy and fortune. And if you believe... just believe that much, it will happen... Big load of shit.

BOB

Well it's more to it than that... These people believe they are born sinners, and they need god's way to help them get to heaven.

JIM

Ha ha ha.. The meaning to live, is to die and be in a fictitious place. I called God a perversion of mankind, because man has created the figure of god. They gave him a human form after calling him the father. Why did all these people believe in a superior being? Because everyone has parents. They ask where we come from, so there must be a creator. You know people used to believe that the earth was the center of the universe, and Christians were the ones that persecuted a scientist who said otherwise.

BOB

Where do you think you came from then?

JIM

Nature... I am bonded full of molecules and energy that exists with the earth.

BOB

Shut the fuck up, you know what I mean... How do we exist?

JIM

I actually wondered that before. Then I thought, what if we really don't exist.

JIM(CONT'D)

We are just a creation of someone's thoughts, and therefore we exist. Then I thought, maybe the mind is actually god. But I realized that God is in our minds, because we cannot believe without consciousness.

BOB

You're smoking too much weed...

JIM

No... hear me out for a second... God can only exist, because it's an abstract thought. And therefore, god does not exist, because our existence is a documentation of conscious memory. The problem is that we can't trust our memory, because humans filter out so much information to make sense of what is going on. But everyone has a different interpretation to truth. So existence is a flaw in itself.

BOB

That doesn't make sense... how is existence a documentation?

JIM

It's like that old cliché, "If a tree fell in the forest, and..."

BOB

"and no-one was there to hear it..."

JIM

Does it make a sound? Like I said, our minds filter out a lot of information to make sense of what is going on. What we are doing now has already happened, because we had to process this in our minds to make sense of it. However short the delay is, it still happened already.

BOB

Ok... so how does prove that god does not exist?

JIM

Simple, God exists because you were told that God exists. No matter where it was or how long ago, someone told you that God exists. The idea of god had became since someone believed in the impossible. Once you convince others that God exists, then it spreads over time. It becomes a collective thought, which then becomes a truth.

Let me ask you this, how did you get the idea of God in you?

BOB

Hmmm... I guess a lot of people told me.

JIM

You remember taking those psychology or philosophy classes? If A is true, and B is true, then C must be true; but if either one is false, then C is always false. Same kinda thing; if God didn't exist to begin with, everyone's faith in it is wrong. Let me remind you of the Greeks who believed in many gods. It was until later Greeks switched it to just one.

BOB

But that was a really long time ago, when it was about myths.

JIM

Well, the beginning of Christianity was a long time ago too... Don't tell me people weren't stupid back then either.

BOB

Well I already told you, I don't believe in organized religion, but I do believe in a God. By the way, you just preached to me the same way as those Jesus Freaks, but with your belief.

JIM

I don't have a belief, just an opinion. But how did you feel about it?

BOB

Honestly? Pointless.

JIM

Exactly... Now you know how I feel.
